WALLACE H. LARSON.

"Almost" is the right word to use when claiming a circulation of 100 per cent for a newspaper.

It is really too bad that certain attorneys(?) in Navajo county find it impossible to practice before the Superior court. Possibly, if they had any practice their prejudices would be overcome.

Over twenty-five thousand voters have already registered in Arizona for the coming state election. It is estimated that the number of voters will go well over fifty thousand before election day rolls round.

One thing is made plain, both by Colonel Roosevelt and his most distinguished supporters, Perkins, Pinchot & Co., that the colonel intends to run for the presidency two years hence, and not on the ticket of the dead Moose party.

Possibly the unserved Republican and the erratic Progressive can agree on the principle that what is wanted for 1916 is a man who can beat Woodrow Wilson, but can they unite votes on such an individual?

The Los Angeles Times says: The four new superdreadnaughts will be called Arizona, California, Mississippi and Idaho. The names are not as terrible, perhaps as Implacable, Invincible, Indomitable and Irristible, but they will bring home the bacon if occasion should arise.

A California hotel advertises "no extra charge for wives." There are several ways to construe the meaning of the above. We may soon hear from the cheerful optimistic idiot who is always explaining how two people can live as cheaply as one. One of his proofs will undoubtedly be the hotel advertisement.

The eastern papers state that the suffragettes of Washington, D. C., will sell kisses August 15 to get money for their cause. This will dispel a certain prejudice entertained in some quarters. What would they think of us men folks doing such a stunt to raise money for campaign purposes.

A statistician has figured that to raise a boy in the simplest way from boyhood to eighteen years of age costs about four thousand dollars. If that is true, let the statistician figure out the problem of how a man whose earnings average two dollars a day rears four boys and three girls, without begging, borrowing or stealing. It has been done, is being done and will be done.

The man who owns his own home, who owns the roof over his head, whose children have a place that they look upon as their own, gives to himself and to his family a chance a thousand times better than that of the individual who lives in a rented house. Don't buy what you can't afford to pay for. But remember that if you are really able to pay the average rent, you are also able to pay for and gradually buy the home and own it.

Gold, silver, copper, lead and zinc were mined in Arizona in 1913 to the value of $70,875,028, according to Victor C. Heikes, of the United States Geological survey, showing an increase as compared with 1912 of $3,824,243. The value of the gold production in 1913 was $4,023,911, that of silver $2,384,647, that of lead $710,370, that of copper $63,238,127, and that of zinc $527,972. There were 438 mines producing gold, silver, copper, lead and zinc in Arizona in 1913, against 445 in 1912.

Colonel Roosevelt is new coming in for commendation because he admitted that during the great coal strike of 1902 he was prepared to send Federal troops into Pennsylvania with orders to seize the anthracite coal and operate the mines. Instructions, it is stated, were actually issued to General Schofield that he "was not to pay attention to any court orders or any other authority than me." As there are still many things which the colonel actually did or did not do left to criticize, what's the use of beginning on those things which he merely intended to do?

THE NEW THOUGHT IN LIFE INSURANCE

Evidently hostile interests are becoming very much distressed by the success of the Postal Life Insurance Company of New York, since they are attempting to check its onward course by legislative enactment. There has been a pet theory for a good many years that nobody would take life insurance unless solicited by an agent. The Postal Life has plenty of resources and owns one of the big down-town buildings of New York City. The men who organized it believe in printers' ink, and have backed their judgment by placing their advertising throughout the country. The result is that they have been forging ahead rapidly—in fact, they have made such progress as "the only non-agency company in America" that the old line insurance companies have decided to try to put the innovation out of business, and therefore bills have been introduced in both the Senate and the House which provide that no insurance company shall be permitted to use the mails for or effecting a policy of insurance upon persons or property situated in any state by its own laws prohibits the company from transacting the insurance business in that state. The Postal life endeavors to reduce the cost of life insurance, by doing all its business from one headquarters and without agents. It has been in business for a number of years and is successful; as a corporation of New York it is regularly examined and has been given a certificate of good standing by the insurance department of that state.

Every session of Congress brings forth a lot of bills which bring up the old doctrine of state's rights, and this is one of them. If the Postal Life was open to any criticism on the part of the federal government, then the Postoffice Department would have checked its progress long years ago.

The singularly significant thing about this legislation is that only one company is affected by the numerous bills that have appeared almost simultaneously in Congress, but if it is true that through the use of advertising space and the United States mails this company has built its business to a big success, then there is no more reason why it should be restricted by local state laws, than by acts of common councils and county boards. With all the restrictions being placed upon insurance companies has come the demand that United States Congress provide for federal control and regulation of insurance business throughout the United States as a practical solution of the problems that have been exciting legislatures and state insurance departments in recent years.

THE COLONEL AND THE TREATIES

When Colonel Roosevelt came to Washington two years ago and appeared before the committee investigating campaign expenses, he turned the plans of Congressmen topsy-turvy. With this recollection in mind, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is not particularly anxious to have the Colonel appear before it to tell what he knows and thinks about the pending treaties proposing to pay Colombia $25,000,000 for the partition of Panama. The Colombian treaty promises to become a great political issue, because it not only carries the suggestion to repudiate the acts of the Roosevelt administration with reference to the independence of the Republic of Panama, but it opens wide the question of continuing the policy of secret sessions of the committees of the Senate in considering treaties. Those Senators who have been making a fight for public hearings upon all questions declare that there is no more interesting matter before the American people than surrounds the affairs of the Colombian and Nicaraguan treaties. Although the Republicans always maintained this policy when they were in power, they are now practically unanimous in criticizing the Democrats for holding executive sessions.

How to Live 100 Year

Is the Name of a New Book

Eugene Christain, F. S. D., the world's greatest Food Scientist, has just published a new book called "How to Live 100 Years"

This book tells you what to eat according to your age, your work and the time of the year. It teaches you how to select, how to combine and how to proportion your food at meals so as to establish perfect digestion and assimilation of food and perfect elimination of waste. In other words, it teaches you how to cure all stomach and intestinal disorders by removing their causes, which is wrong eating.

If you have indigestion, gas, fermentation, sour stomach or any such disorders after a meal, this book tells you how to put the remedy on your table at the next meal.

Dr. Christain shows that all animals except man live about eight times as long as it takes them to get their growth. If man should do this he would live nearly 260 years, but civilized man dies at the average age of 35. He begins to lose his teeth, his eyes and his hair, and drops into his grave only a few years after he is grown.

Dr. Christain shows that 22 per cent of all the human beings born into the world die before they are one year old. 22 per cent more die before their fifth birthday, and more than half of the human race die before they are twenty-five.

All other animals on the globe live eight times as long as it takes them to get their growth. Man breathes the same air, drinks the same water, lives under the same sun, but differs from his brother animals only in his eating, therefore Dr. Christain shows conclusively that this appalling discrepancy must be on account of his eating habits and he has proved that his theory is true by curing over 23,000 people within the past ten years by teaching them what to eat and how to eat. "How to Live 100 Years" gives the secret of his methods.

This book does not disarrange or upset the family table. It teaches the housewife what foods the meal should be composed of, so as to make them chemically harmonious and perfectly digestible and healthy.

This book is beautifully bound in vellum, and gold lettered. Send one dollar to Dr. Eugene Christain, 218 West 79th Street, New York City, and you will receive this life saving book by return mail, and if it is not worth weight in gold your money will be promptly refunded to you.
